SIX PARKING PASSES THREATENED

The impeccable "establishment" at LOYOLA LAW SCHOOL sold six more parking passes than there are spaces in that parking lot this semester. This same imaginative "establishment" notified the students using the lot of its clever solution for the partial breach of contract. "Confiscate six passes"!

The LOYOLA BRIEF feels that there may be another solution to this problem--(assuming, for the sake of argument at all of the cars issued passes could show up at the same time)-- The solution will call for teamwork and cooperation from all students with parking privileges.

THE SOLUTION-----

1. IF YOU DRIVE a Volkswagen or other small car, park against the wall on the southern border of the lot. In so doing, ignore the painted lines and park reasonably close to gether.
2. IF YOU OWN a Rolls Royce, or other big car, do not park against the wall on the southern border of the lot.

Since the lovely lines that have been painted all over the parking lot are nine feet apart and since little cars don't need all of that space, the savings in spaces will more than make up the deficit.

Since there is no way to officially enforce this plan, the cooperation of all students in the lot will be required. Please help and save six sad students from losing their parking privileges. The pass you save, may be your own.

STUDENT MAIL SERVICE PROVIDED

There is now a mail box in the coffee shop for submitting articles or comments to the BRIEF, or to other student organizations.

(.ed. - please use it. We need writers. and typists!!)

EDITORIAL COMMENT: STUDENT SPEAKERS PROGRAM

One of several thankless jobs available to students at LOYOLA LAW SCHOOL is the chairmanship of the Student Speakers Program. Last semester the job was held by MIKE RICHMAN. Mike arranged for several interesting and dynamic speakers, most of whom showed up.

This semester, JAMES BYRNE has the job. To kick off the speakers program for the semester, Jim arranged to have his uncle, WILLIAM MATTHEW BYRNE, United States Attorney General, speak to the LOYOLA Student Body.

The students who attended the lecture were told that they would hear, from a highly respected and recognised expert about the draft laws, the new narcotics legislation and new thinking on Federal Civil Rights Law. Instead, the anxious students were confronted with another one hour recruitment program, ending up with words that are becoming all too familiar, "... the money isn't great but the work is interesting."

While it is heart warming to know that every major agency has openings for bright young attorneys, it seems that the Speakers Program was designed for greater things than recruitment.

An active Speakers Program could expose students to the contemporary legal problems and possible solutions. It should be an inspiring and education experience. This writer feels that the program has thus far fallen far short of these goals.

The LOYOLA BRIEF suggests that in the future, speakers be informed of the goals of the program. That the speaker was chosen for his proven ability to isolate and solve major problems of the day. And that if he wants to do some recruiting, time is available but that the best recruiting that he could do for himself and for the school is to discuss the legal problems of interest and forget the budget for a while.

PLAY SCHOOL GOVERNMENT

"Due to the school's contract with A.R.A. it will be impossible to have a canned coke machine installed," said the Bar Governors's ditto summarily.

How innocent (or ignorant) to feed us irrelevancy! It is an evasion of pertinency matched only by the Warren Commission; thus, with editorial immunity, I shall remedy their blindness and give sight to the statement: "Due to the laxity of supervision or the indifference to student welfare (an admittedly harsh indictment) our school has a contract with A.R.A. which allows this corporation to perpetrate outrageous atrocities upon both the stomach and the pocket. We wonder why our student body is allowed to be the captive of such an exorbitant slop merchant?"

DELIVERANCE from "LOYOLA AS AN INTELLECTUAL EXPERIENCE"

Another of Dorsey's downers had concluded and I fled for the door with my stomach in my head, but was trapped by a vomiting mass of bodies grappling for outside air.

Once again on the terrace I reflected upon the many comments that had bombarded my senses while in the struggle for freedom from our white-washed, virgin concrete womb. Here is but a small array of the more dynamic verbal outcroppings:

- "...No, no, what you heard was, 'I am mastered by my fate; a servant of the system!'"
- "...Just as Sartre would confess that God shall deliver the world from the Vietnam War; just as defacto Gov. George would masquerade at his coronation as Al Jolson; So too I would assert that Loyola is a bastion of intellectual activity..."
- "...I didn't understand much of what the three speakers had to say, but it did take me all of the second hour to count the windows in our classroom..."
- "...I shall not blanket Loyola with an all-inclusive indictment of anti-intellectualism, but let me put it this way: Eighth-grade social studies also had its moments of mind challenging inventiveness..."
- "...Did one of the speakers say something about analytical imagination infused with an aloof, socio-conscious objectivity or was it rather that he said, calculated mimicry laced with total regurgitational involvement?..."
- "...The only intellectual experience involved in the daily trudging through these folding doors is that of defining Loyola's anti-intellectualism and rationalizing the reason why you're STILL here....."

GIVE BLOOD

Brian Barnard (2nd/day) and Aggeler Inn (PHI Delta Phi) have organized the first annual "Stick it to me" Blood Drive. In charge of fun (as well as being permanent sponsor) is Mr. Nehring. It concerns the Red Cross Blood Bank system. Members of a group make donations and build a Group Account, and in time of need, members and their immediate family may draw not only upon their own account, but also on the entire Group Account, thus evading a normal pint-of-blood fee of between 25 and 65 dollars. The Blood Drive is MONDAY MARCH 4th, from 8:30 am to 4:30pm, and until 8:30 pm for night students. The donation center is located at 1130 S. Vermont, five minutes from school. See posted info or contact Brian or Aggeler or "the happy fellow".

SPRING DANCE & LIBEL SHOW:
EPIC SLANDER SCHEDULED

Internationally famous Santa Monica will host the internationally famous LOYOLA LAW SCHOOL SPRING DANCE & LIBEL SHOW at the MIRAMAR HOTEL on Mar. 23.

Students and Faculty are invited to submit the internationally famous free admission beginning at 8:00 pm.

In addition to door prizes, the dance will feature the internationally infamous LIBEL SHOW. (For the uninitiated, each class presents characterizations of their "favorite professors, limited only by good taste, for the pleasure of the guests.)

Each class is urged to get their representatives on the ball and start preparing a skit of about 5 minutes for the show.

(In the past, the third year class has consistently taken home honors for the best skit. In all likelihood their dominance will continue.)

SPORTS AND WEATHER

Third year student, JOSEPH LYNCH is fast developing into a world class two miler. His most recent efforts at the N.Y. Athletic Club meet at Madison Square Garden was nationally televised on the Wide World of Sports. Even though he didn't win, he led the race for most of the way and showed the viewers that he will be a force in the near future.

Across town, the LOYOLA UNIVERSITY BASKETBALL TEAM is currently tied for first place in the W.C.A.C. Should they defeat Santa Clara in their showdown on Mar. 9 at Santa Clara, they could earn the right to meet U.C.L.A. in the Western Regionals of N.C.A.A. playoffs.

Congratulations to all the good sports in the finals' game.

The long range weather forecast reveals that we will continue to have weather for at least the next two weeks. After that time the weatherman is noncommittal.

BRIDGE TOURNEY?

Most people in the United States would define BRIDGE as either a place to cross a river, something that goes into your mouth or a game for little old ladies. One look into the law school coffee shop reveals many hairy chested lawyer types plying their skills at the game called BRIDGE.

To the uninterested it is becoming increasingly difficult to maintain a straight face in view of the braggadocio that accompanies winning. Ever since BRIDGE has surpassed PROP II in popularity the clamor has increased.

In order to quiet the din, and in the same spirit that has led the BRIEF to suggest other student activities, the editors of the BRIEF do now endorse the ASSOCIATED STUDENTS OF LOYOLA UNIVERSITY AT LOS ANGELES, SCHOOL OF LAW, ANNUAL COFFEE SHOP BRIDGE TOURNAMENT.

TREASURER WANTED

The office of Treasurer of Loyola Bar Association is open to students of the first and second year day and night, and third year night.

Although an accounting or C.P.A. background would be helpful, it is not required. No more than a few hours of work a week is necessary for the job.

If you are interested in running for the office of Treasurer in April, call the current Treasurer, Harvey Gazin, and he will explain in detail what the office duties entail.

DEAR MR. D:-----

Is it true that if grades are not officially entered by the end of this week, they won't count and the class will have to be repeated by the students?
