Editors Note

Just as the Loyola Lawyer was going to press, the following announcement was made by Reverend Donald P. Merrifield, S.J., president, Loyola Marymount University.

It is with deep regret that I announce to the University Community the resignation of Frederick J. Lower, Jr., as Dean of Loyola Law School, effective on or about July 1, 1979. Dean Lower's leadership over the past five years has been truly outstanding. He will be greatly missed as Dean, both within the Law School and in the larger Southern California community.

I have established a Law School Dean Search Committee under the chairmanship of Reverend Charles S. Casassa, S.J., Chancellor of the University.

I wish to express my personal gratitude for Fred Lower's many services to the Law School and the University during his tenure as Dean. He has initiated a development program for the Law School which will greatly enhance our capabilities for providing continuing excellent educational opportunities for students of the law and for providing services to the members of the Bar and the community at large.

Activities and accomplishments of Loyola faculty members

From the Dean

In this issue of the Loyola Lawyer, two important student journals are featured: the Loyola Law Review, and the soon-to-be-published International and Comparative Law Annual. I believe all Loyola alumni can take justifiable pride in the high calibre of legal writing and analysis exhibited in these fine student journals. Both will be making significant contributions to the advancement of legal thought through research on a wide variety of timely legal issues, as well as enhancing Loyola's scholastic reputation.

The Law Review is providing a particularly valuable and growing service to practitioners in the Ninth Circuit, where the vast majority of our alumni live and practice law, through an "Annual Survey of Developments in Criminal Law and Procedure in the Ninth Circuit." It is also gaining a national reputation for excellence through authoritative critiques and expositions by prominent individuals, our faculty, and students.

The International and Comparative Law Annual, scheduled for publication in December, will perform a vital service. International Law is becoming increasingly important for practitioners in Southern California, a major center of world commerce, as global communications, trade, industry, tourism, environmental concerns, politics, diplomacy, and a host of other issues affect all of us living in a "shrinking" world. Loyola Law School will expand its role and responsibility for teaching this vital specialty, and help to keep attorneys informed, by publishing careful analyses of topical concerns submitted from authorities in the United States and abroad. We must all expand our horizons in dealing with International Law, and Loyola Law School is leading the way towards developing an understanding of international affairs in an era of critical need for such understanding.

Loyola alumni should take special notice of these outstanding student journals and perhaps consider a subscription to help bolster the already excellent editorial efforts.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank all of the alumni and friends who have provided financial support this past year. As specified in the enclosed Annual Report and Honor Roll, it is indeed gratifying to witness the substantial increase in gifts grow from the 1976-77 total of slightly over $127,000 to this past fiscal year's combined total of $316,484. This growth in annual support is vital if Loyola is to insure continued excellence in legal education. We have a fine Law School, and our donors have affirmed this fact. With the involvement and assistance of an expanding number of alumni and friends, we shall continue to improve.

In closing, I believe you will be pleased to see the range and vitality of the many alumni activities which are highlighted in this issue. The Alumni Association Board of Governors and many other alumni volunteers have been working diligently with the Law School staff to upgrade our alumni relations program. The Alumni Directory, which is planned for publication in January 1979, class reunions, the annual dinner, and alumni chapter social events are just a few of the varied activities planned as a means of improving communications and contact between the Law School and you.

Ultimately, the Law School depends on your active interest to achieve full success. These functions are primarily enjoyable social outings with your friends, classmates, and professional associates; but they also provide an opportunity to keep abreast of the progress which has been made at Loyola since you graduated.

I look forward to meeting with each of you at future events to help keep you informed about the current state of your Law School, and to acquaint you with some of the plans now being formulated for Loyola's continued advancement. So the next time you receive an invitation to attend one of our alumni gatherings, please give it serious consideration and reserve time from your busy calendar to "touch base" with your Law School.

Expanding the Academic Challenge:

Student Law Journals

Expanding the academic challenge for students is the principle motivation behind Loyola Law School's support of two scholarly journals devoted to critiques and expositions of current legal decisions and contemporary problems. The Loyola of Los Angeles Law Review, begun in 1967, and the recently inaugurated Loyola of Los Angeles International and Comparative Law Annual are both providing coverage of crucial areas of the law important to the legal community, while also enhancing Loyola's scholastic reputation on a national and international level.

The quarterly Loyola Law Review has had many prominent public figures contribute articles during the past year, including Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D. Mass.); Justice Otto M. Kaus '49, California Court of Appeal; and Judge Irwin Nebron. In the coming year, Justice Mathew Tobriner, California Supreme Court, and anti-trust expert Julian Von Kalinowski will be among the distinguished contributors to the Review.

Another substantive aspect is the number of Loyola Professors who actively contribute to the growth of the law through research and writing for the Law Review. In the 1977-78 volume, Professor Harry S. Laughren, faculty advisor to the Law Review, contributed an article detailing property and inheritance rights of putative spouses in California, and Professor Gerald F. Uelman examined the Uniform Determinate Sentencing Act. In the upcoming year, Loyola Professors Robert W. Benson, William Coskran '59, Susan W. Liebel, Karl M. Manheim, J. Timothy Phillips, and Uelman are all planning to contribute.

Professor Phillip's article will focus on the tax consequences of certain types of corporate dissolutions, while Professor Liebel urges reversal of the controversial ruling in Daniel v. International Brotherhood of Teamsters, now on certiorari to the U.S. Supreme Court, and Professor Benson proposes the adoption of a new law protecting a tenant's right to privacy in California.

Professor Coskran has sought in his article to elucidate the difficult area of "front-end" payments on leases; Professor Uelman will review a provocative new book on criminal law, and Visiting Professor Karl Manheim will explore the constitutionality of the death penalty.

The Loyola Law Review has recently received national media coverage of an article authored by students Eric Green, Jonathon Marks and Ronald Olson on Settling Large Case Litigation: An Alternative Approach which was presented to an American Bar Association committee meeting in New York. Considerable attention was given to the proposal by the New York Times, and there have been numerous subsequent requests from the legal community across the country for the June 1978 volume in which the article appeared.

Loyola Law Review has also received considerable attention from the federal criminal bar as a result of the innovative annual "Survey of Developments in Criminal Law and Procedures in the Ninth Circuit." The survey, which first appeared in 1976, is in demand among U.S. Attorneys, Federal Public Defenders, and private practitioners. Other recent surveys of the Ninth Circuit have dealt with topics such as labor law and civil procedure.

Another Ninth Circuit project will study the 25 years of related court decisions since Brown v. Board of Education. Outside of the Ninth Circuit area, the Review for the upcoming year will also contain a symposium on legal philosophy authored by some of the most prominent legal philosophers in the United States, as well as other meaningful and interesting articles produced by Loyola law students.

Review Reception—A reception honoring the outgoing and incoming Board of Editors for the Loyola of Los Angeles Law Review was held April 21 at the home of Charles L. Crouch III '78, outgoing editor-in-chief. Pictured (above) are the 12-member Board of Editors for 1978-79 who were chosen from student applicants who served the previous year on the 40-member Law Review staff. The Board is comprised of Allan Ides, editor-in-chief; Rita Miller, chief articles editor; Gregg Homer and Juli McIntyre, articles editors; Wayne Bell, chief note & comment editor; Jane Sudhaus and Nick DeWitt, note & comment editors; Mitchell Tilner, chief Ninth Circuit editor; Leslie Marine and Thomas Hozduk, Ninth Circuit editors; Gary Valeriano, managing editor; and Ralph Slater, business editor.

According to the current editor-in-chief Allan Ides '79, "The foundation of any Law Review are the law students; the quality of work produced by the Review is a reflection of the competence, effort, dedication and imagination of the students at the school. This, in turn, is a reflection of the educational experience they have received both from the Law School itself, and from their work on the Review. If the level of professionalism is high in the exacting work of producing a fine and respected Law Review, then it can be postulated that they are also prepared for the rigors of the legal profession."

Another area of legal specialization has taken on a new dimension for Loyola students who are interested in pursuing international law studies. The inaugural issue of the Loyola of Los Angeles International and Comparative Law Annual is due for publication in December. The Annual, a new scholarly publication of Loyola Law School, was formed last year under the guidance of Professor Donald T. Wilson.

The journal will focus on both theoretical and topical issues of international and comparative law of interest to scholars and practitioners in the field. The first issue of the Annual includes articles on such diverse topics as human rights, east-west industrial cooperation, anti-trust provisions in the United States and the European Economic Community, as well as a study of the problems which Islamic Law faces in adapting to a changing Middle East—all by renowned scholars and practitioners from around the world.

In addition, the Annual includes a Book Review segment and a Note and Comment section devoted to the works of Loyola law students. Early notice and treatment of international developments is directed by an Advisory Committee comprised of an international network of lawyers, jurists, and professors.

A unique feature of each issue will be a complete listing, indexed by country and subject matter, of recent acquisitions by the Los Angeles County Law Library's International and Comparative Collection, including Library of Congress reference numbers. This feature should prove invaluable to those in the legal community who wish to keep abreast of current trends, thoughts, and developments within this area, since it will provide instant and inexpensive access to the third largest international law collection in the United States.

Los Angeles is rapidly becoming a center for the study and practice of international law as the body of law expands and grows more complex. The Loyola of Los Angeles International and Comparative Law Annual is designed to be a publication of quality and value not only to the scholar and the specialist in international and comparative law, but also to the practitioner suddenly confronted in regular practice with international problems which arise in California with increasing frequency.

The Annual has also been created as an organ of expression for students with an interest in international legal and comparative studies. One of its primary purposes is the training of students in the skills of legal writing, research and analysis. A new board of ten student editors, led by Robert Whitehead, editor-in-chief, has been selected for 1978-79 on the basis of interest and prior academic achievement. All Loyola students, however, are encouraged to submit contributions to the Annual through a legal writing competition.

The Annual has received initial funding from Loyola Law School, but the current editors and staff are working to ensure the publication's self-sufficiency through subscriptions. Thus far, response from the international legal community augurs well for the continued success of the Loyola of Los Angeles International and Comparative Law Annual, the first publication of its kind by a law school in the greater Los Angeles area, and one of only 19 such journals in the United States.

Loyola is assuming a leadership role in international affairs by expanding its responsibility for teaching and informing the legal community about disputes arising from global communication, diplomacy, environmental concerns, trade and commerce, natural resources, multi-national corporations and the myriad issues now affecting our everyday lives which may have their source thousands of miles away.

International Law Activities

Loyola Law School has recently focused on various topics of international law via speakers, publications, and even a proposed overseas law study/travel program.

On campus lectures by noted authorities in the field have explored subjects as diverse as Red China, the Soviet Union and the Middle East, while Loyola faculty members have been actively involved in Australia, Egypt, England, Switzerland, and Chile.

A slide/lecture presentation titled "Observations on Law in the People's Republic of China" was held September 20 by U.S. Federal District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson which chronicled his comprehensive invitational tour of mainland China with a group of judicial colleagues in 1977. It included photographic highlights of the Forbidden City, the Great Wall, agricultural communes, Peking, and a Ming Dynasty temple, as well as the culture, art, industry, commerce, schools, and medical treatment.

His viewpoints on the practice of law illustrated the vast dichotomy of social thought extant between East and West. Ferguson noted that there are no lawyers per se in Red China, no adversary proceedings, and also no formal courts of record for the disposition of most cases. Further, violations of the law are not litigated strictly as civil or criminal acts, but rather within a much broader context as potential political violations against the state.

Loyola Visiting Professor of Law Karl M. Manheim also toured China in April 1978 under the official auspices of a U.S. Labor/Management Delegation to evaluate industrial practices in the People's Republic and to observe the legal system.

The contemporary debate on international human rights issues has been examined from several different perspectives at Loyola recently. Noted international law authority Harold Berman of Harvard Law School spoke on "Human Rights in the Soviet Union—Some Current American Fallacies" last Spring, and Israeli Supreme Court Justice Meir Shamgar addressed "Human Rights in Israel" as part of the Law School's ongoing guest lecture program.

Eugenio Velasco, visiting professor, has lectured widely on the Chilean political situation, and was a panel member on a recent symposium examining "Legal Responses to Individual Rights Violations in Latin America."

Professor Gerald F. Uelmen participated in a legal exchange program with Scotland Yard during a six-month sabbatical for the study of drug abuse criminal procedures in Great Britain.

Professor Curt Garbesi was a visiting professor at Macquarie University School of Law in Sydney, Australia, over the summer, while Professor Robert W. Benson authored a paper for the World Intellectual Property Organization in Geneva, Switzerland, commenting on consumer protection of geographical indications on wine labels. Together, Garbesi and Benson are now conducting a feasibility study on the possibilities of a law study/travel program abroad to be sponsored by Loyola, perhaps next year.

Dr. A. Mushin El-Biali, adjunct professor, will be travelling to Egypt in December to lecture at Al-Azhar University in Cairo under the Academy for the Study of Judaism, Christianity and Islam. And, the Loyola Law Review is planning publication of an article on "The American Prosecutorial System from a Soviet Perspective" in the June 1979 volume.

International Board—Serving on the International and Comparative Law Annual board of editors for 1978-79 are (from left) Frank Sanford Osen, articles editor; Michell Fisher, note and comment editor; Larry Karlin, articles editor; Robert Pennington Whitehead, editor in chief; LaDonna Wallace, articles editor; Nathan B. Hoffman, acquisitions editor; Steven N. Bloom, executive editor, and Correse A. Artieres, business and managing editor. Not shown are Judy Chan, note and comment editor, and Vrenae Sutphin, note and comment editor.

International Advisor—Faculty advisor for the new International and Comparative Law Annual is Professor Donald T. Wilson who joined the Loyola faculty in 1972 and is currently teaching courses in Comparative Law, Conflict of Laws, International Business Transactions, and Legal History.

Observations—Hon. Warren J. Ferguson, U.S. Central District Court (left) presented an informative slide/lecture program titled "Observations on Law in the People's Republic of China" for Loyola students and staff on September 20. Here, Judge Ferguson chats with Professor Quentin (Bud) Ogren '49 after the lecture.

Israeli Justice—An informative lecture on "Human Rights in Israel" was presented by Hon. Meir Shamgar, justice of the Supreme Court of Israel, on March 16 as part of the Law School's guest lecture program. Justice Shamgar was appointed to the Supreme Court in 1975, is a past Attorney General of Israel, a member of the International Society of Military Law and the Laws of War, and served as a faculty member at Tel Aviv University and the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Law School Alumni Directory Planned

Because there have been frequent inquiries from alumni seeking information about former classmates and Law School services, publication of a Loyola Law School Alumni Directory is planned. It will be published through the Alumni Association and available for distribution in January 1979.

Alumni who wish to reserve a copy of the directory may do so by completing the form below and returning it to the Law School in the enclosed reply envelope.

This will be the first time such a directory has been published for the Law School. It will provide up-to-date information compiled from a planned September mail survey of all Law School graduates. You may also use the form below to help us update our alumni records. This information will be listed in several different categories for the personal and professional use of our approximately 4,500 alumni.

The general format of the Alumni Directory will consist of alphabetical, geographic, and class year sections.

An introductory section will include a list of Law School boards, faculty and administration, and an overview of Law School services available to alumni.

The alphabetical section will list alumni in order with business addresses. The geographic section will list alumni by state and city. The class section will provide a roster of alumni by class year.

Alumni Directory

Loyola Law School and the Alumni Association are currently planning the publication of an Alumni Directory. This will be the first time such a directory has been compiled, and the Alumni Relations office is seeking information to update its files. To insure that we have your correct address and professional information, please fill out the form below and return it as soon as possible in the enclosed reply envelope. Since the value of any Alumni Directory is dependent upon the publication of accurate information, your cooperation and prompt response will be greatly appreciated.

New Members Appointed to Board of Visitors

Jack M. Ostrow '48, an attorney and certified public accountant in Beverly Hills, was recently appointed to the Law School's Board of Visitors.

Ostrow, who earned a bachelor's degree from the University of California, Los Angeles, is active in the real estate, commercial and entertainment fields. He is currently serving as chairman of the Board of Directors of the University of Judaism (Los Angeles) where he was the first chairman of its school of Fine Arts. He is also vice chairman of the Board of Directors for American City Bank (Los Angeles). In 1972, Ostrow was awarded the Louis Marshall Memorial Medal of the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York.

Raymond A. Rodeno, chairman of the Board of Directors, president and chief executive officer of Allstate Savings and Loan Association (North Hollywood) has also been appointed to the Board of Visitors.

Rodeno earned his law degree from Marshall Law School of Baldwin Wallace University (Cleveland) after completing his undergraduate studies at Western Reserve University (Cleveland). He has worked in various capacities for Allstate Insurance Company and the Savings and Loan Association since 1948, and was elected chairman of the Board and chief executive officer of the Savings and Loan Association in 1975.

Rodeno's professional and civic activities include serving on numerous state and national savings and loan association boards and committees, and current membership on the United Way-Region I Board of Directors. He has also been a guest lecturer at the Hasting's School of Law (San Francisco).

Board of Visitors Committees Formed

The Board of Visitors has organized four committees to concentrate on its major purposes and responsibilities.

A Career Planning Committee, chaired by Thomas V. Girardi '64 a partner in the Los Angeles law firm of Girardi, Keese & Crane, will provide leadership in career planning and placement for Loyola Law School students and alumni. A Development Committee, headed by Richard J. Riordan, a partner in the Los Angeles law firm of Riordan, Caps & Carbone, will work in the areas of fund-raising and community relations, seeking to widen the Law School's circle of friends and to secure the physical, financial, and human resources needed to maintain Loyola Law School's position of academic and professional excellence.

An Education Committee under chairman Maynard J. Toll, senior partner in the Los Angeles law firm of O'Melveny & Myers, will work to develop better communication between the community and Loyola Law School in order to facilitate contacts and cooperation with business, law, and the judiciary. The Nominating Committee is chaired by Joseph A. Ball, partner in the Los Angeles law firm of Ball, Hunt, Hart, Brown & Baerwitz.

Each Board of Visitors' committee will work closely with members of the Law School staff who will assist them in their assignments.

In Memoriam

Theodore A. (Ted) Von der Ahe '31
1908-1978

Theodore A. (Ted) Von der Ahe '31, honorary co-chairman of the Board of Visitors, passed away on June 2.

Von der Ahe, co-founder and former president and chairman of the Board of Directors of Vons Grocery Company, graduated from Loyola in 1931 where he earned LL.B. and Master of Law degrees.

A native of Los Angeles, Von der Ahe's business career led him to directorships of BankAmerica Corporation, Bank of America, Farmers Insurance Group, Pacific United Services Corporation, National Association of Food Chains, and Household Finance Corporation.

Von der Ahe was a member of the Sovereign Military Order of the Knights of Malta, and, in 1960, he was named Man of the Year by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. In April, Von der Ahe received the Distinguished Achievement Award from the Alumni Association of Loyola Law School.

Annual Report and Honor Roll

Dear Loyola Law School Alum:

The formation of The Advocates Council described in this issue of the Loyola Lawyer represents an increased awareness that the Law School has, for too long, relied on tuition as virtually its only source of operating income. We need a commitment to significantly increase annual gifts in order to reduce this heavy dependence on tuition.

Last year, alumni contributed $68,620 to the Law School. While this is a dramatic increase over the sum of $29,253 contributed the year before, it represents gifts made by only 7% of the total number of alumni. We are the chief beneficiaries of Loyola Law School's educational program and Loyola's continuing reputation for excellence benefits all of us. However, if Loyola is to remain a pacesetter in legal education, it must first have broad-based alumni financial support on a regular, annual basis. In addition, major grants from foundations and other sources are often made on a matching basis or are awarded on the basis of alumni participation.

Please thoughtfully consider the excellent education you received at Loyola and the intangible benefits you continue to receive as a result of the Law School's outstanding reputation, and then join your fellow alumni in becoming a member of The Advocates. Loyola needs and deserves your support.

Scholarship Established in Memory of Robert Lynch

Friends, classmates and law partners of Robert D. Lynch '72 have established a scholarship fund in Bob's memory. As reported in the last Loyola Lawyer, Bob was fatally injured in February by an intruder in his home.

A steering committee has been formed to raise a minimum of $25,000 to endow in perpetuity the Robert D. Lynch Memorial Scholarship. Serving on the committee are Kurt L. Altenberg, Robert E. Carlson, Owen G. Fiore '61, Jeffrey L. Glassman '72, Robert L. Murphy, Robert L. Pike '72, Patrick G. Rogan '72, Morton M. Rosenfeld, Michael M. Sachs, Mark R. Steinberg, and William J. Sulentor '72.

Annual income earned from the Lynch Memorial Scholarship fund will provide financial assistance for one or more third-year law students who best exemplify Bob's scholarly and personal qualities. Scholarship recipients will be selected by a special committee.

Bob graduated cum laude from Loyola Law School in 1972. While a law student he was a member of the Law Review staff and a member of the St. Thomas More Law Honor Society.

Following graduation, Bob became an associate in the law firm of Agnew, Miller & Carlson (Los Angeles). On January 1, 1978 he was made a partner in that firm.

Bob leaves his wife, Heide, and two daughters, Kirstin and Michelle; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Lynch; two brothers, Patrick, a 1966 graduate of Loyola Law School, and Thomas; and one sister, Katherine.

As of this writing, $14,250 in gifts and pledges have been received for the Robert D. Lynch Memorial Scholarship Fund. Anyone wishing to make a contribution can do so by enclosing a check, made payable to Loyola Law School—Lynch Memorial Fund, in the reply envelope provided with the Loyola Lawyer. All gifts to this memorial fund are tax deductible as provided by law.

AlumNews

A comprehensive series of class reunions and alumni chapter activities have been planned by Loyola Law School as a means of fostering a stronger working relationship between alumni and their Law School and promoting closer personal and professional ties among alumni.

Various events held during the Spring elicited a positive response from the many alumni who attended and enjoyed the festivities.

The Class of 1948 held their 30-Year Reunion on May 6 at the home of Judge and Mrs. Raymond Roberts in Van Nuys. Reunion chairman Henry Bodkin, Jr. and his committee of Hugh Macneil, John McCue and Harold Rubins planned an outstanding event.

Seventeen alumni, along with their spouses and guests, attended the reunion. Special invitations were extended to Dean and Mrs. Frederick Lower, Jr. '64, and to Mrs. Sidney Graybeal-Morgan, former Registrar at the Law School, and her husband, John.

Following dinner, a slide presentation reviewing the Law School's history and future plans was presented.

The Class of 1958 held their 20-Year Reunion on May 7 at the La Canada home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Ruffolo. A total of 35 alumni, spouses and guests attended the patio buffet along with Law School Professors Lloyd Tevis '50 and Quentin (Bud) Ogren '49 who joined the alumni for an afternoon of reminiscing and renewing friendships.

Reunion chairman was Robert Dahl, who was assisted by committee members Albert Ebright, Hon. Richard Gadbois, Daniel Holden, Hon. John Lynch, Samuel Palmer III, Anthony Ruffolo, Ernest Sanchez and John St. Pierre.

Members of the Class of 1928 were the honored guests at the annual Golden Lions Reunion held June 3 at the University's Westchester campus. The reunion program included a concelebrated Mass at Huesman Chapel, followed by a reception and dinner in the Faculty Lounge attended by 38 Golden Lions and their guests.

During the reception, Golden Lions chairman Francis (Tat) Nicholson entertained the group with songs from the Jazz Age on the piano. Following a nostalgia look at the beginnings of Loyola when located at the old Venice Boulevard campus, Rev. Donald P. Merrifield, S.J., University president, briefed them on the state of the University today.

The new inductees to the group, recognizing both University and Law School graduates of 50 years or more, received a commemorative plaque. Law Alumni attending the event were Paul Bickert '32, William Cronin '28, Joseph Du Ross '30, Edward Hess, John Irwin '28, David Keily '28, Hon. William Mahedy '30, Patrick O'Hara '28 and Robert Sullivan '28.

The Alumni Chapters have also been actively organizing during recent months to promote camaraderie among Loyola graduates. There are 18 chapters in California which will each be holding an annual event. Several of the local alumni groups have already held social gatherings.

The Palos Verdes Alumni Chapter held their annual event on June 11. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haase, Jr. '56, chapter president, hosted a barbecue at their home.

Forty-four alumni, their spouses and guests, gathered for an afternoon of alfresco dining, fun and entertainment. Dean Fred Lower and his wife Virginia also attended. Dean Lower addressed the group on current activities at the Law School and future plans.

Serving on the steering committee for the Palos Verdes event were Brian Brandmeyer '62, Hon. John Kronenberg '58, and Russell (Rusty) Jones '57.
