January 2018 (Volume 8.5)

Spring 2018 Preview Edition

During our last pass around the sun, we reached a number of important milestones at the William H. Hannon Library. We welcomed seven new librarians to our ranks. Our e-book holdings surpassed the half-million mark. The number of works in our institutional repository, Digital Commons, rose to over 10,000 objects. We saw more than 5,000 guests attend library events.

We introduced LMU students to national conversations about "fake news" and highlighted the intersections of information literacy and social justice. We added a variety of unique objects to our Special Collections, including early editions of titles by Charles Dickens, John Donne, and Sir Walter Raleigh. And we began building a platform of support for providing electronic access to course-adopted texts.

We hope 2018 will bring you as much joy and engagement as we experienced this past year. In this month's brief edition of Happenings @ Hannon, we highlight a few of our upcoming programs. Happy New Year, Lions!

Long Night Against Procrastination

Every Spring we invite students to a late-night study event in the library's Von der Ahe Family Suite. We provide participants with snacks, study tools, access to research support staff, and a structured evening of productivity in a private area of the William H. Hannon Library. Sign-ups for this event are first-come, first-served and will open in April. Follow us on Twitter to get notified and stay up to date!
