Say Goodbye to Overdue Fines

Beginning in the Fall 2018 semester, we will no longer charge fines on overdue books from our main stacks and basement collections. We'll give you a moment to do your happy dance...

This is a great step toward fulfilling the library's strategic principle to transform the user experience to promote optimal utilization of library resources, tools, and services. By eliminating fines for non-reserve, non-media items we can significantly enhance the student experience at the William H. Hannon Library. Interested in learning more about this new policy and why we've decided to do this? Hit the "Read More" button below!

Escape from the Archives

Students in Elizabeth Drummond's HIST 2910 course got a special surprise during the class visit to Archives and Special Collections this past month: an escape room! Using reproductions of 19th century materials from our collections, students had to solve a series of puzzles in order to "get out" of the Archives classroom. All three student teams successfully cracked the codes and made it out in time, some with only a few seconds to spare.
