REVIEW OF RESEARCH

INTRODUCTION

JOSEPH M. O'KEEFE, S. J.

Boston College

In this volume of Catholic Education, two research articles appear. The first, written by Thomas Hunt and Ron Nuzzi, both of the University of Dayton, offers an overview of recent dissertations related to Catholic education. A comprehensive summary of the abstracts of these dissertations has been published by the National Catholic Educational Association. The second article in this section, written by Gerald Grace of the University of London, describes the founding of the Centre for Research and Development in Catholic Education, as well as the projects that will comprise its research and development agenda.

As always, I welcome contributions of any length that foster an awareness of global research efforts in Catholic education. Please send submissions to:
