

4-1-1969

Books Received

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.lmu.edu/llr>

Part of the Law Commons

Recommended Citation

Books Received, 2 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 182 (1969).

Available at: <https://digitalcommons.lmu.edu/llr/vol2/iss1/14>

This Other is brought to you for free and open access by the Law Reviews at Digital Commons @ Loyola Marymount University and Loyola Law School. It has been accepted for inclusion in Loyola of Los Angeles Law Review by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@Loyola Marymount University and Loyola Law School. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@lmu.edu.

BOOKS RECEIVED

CAL. LAW: TRENDS AND DEVELOPMENTS. Edited by Neil M. Levy. San Francisco: Bancroft-Whitney Co., 1968. Pp. 524. $24.50. The School of Law of Golden Gate College makes its first annual review of significant developments in California law between October 1, 1966, and October 1, 1967. This book presents articles in the areas of private, adjective, and public law.

IDENTIFICATION AND POLICE LINE-UPS. By William E. Ringel. New York: Gould Publications, 1968. Pp. 211. $5.00. The author, a judge in the criminal court of the City of New York, investigates the psychological and legal problems implicit in the area of identification in criminal proceedings. Judge Ringel deals with the methods and techniques of criminal identification in general, encompassing both psychological and scientific factors. He also analyzes three landmark decisions by the United States Supreme Court dealing with the application of the Fifth, Sixth, and Fourteenth Amendments.

INTENTION IN LAW AND SOCIETY. By James Marshall. New York: Funk & Wagnalls, 1968. Pp. 237. $5.95. The author traces the history of the law from its Judeo-Christian beginnings to today's common law. He emphasizes socio-economic and psychological conditions and the effect of drugs and blood chemistry on intent. Mr. Marshall poses the question whether scientific inquiry can and will help law adapt to changing times and changing knowledge. He calls for a far-reaching change in the attitudes and procedures of both our courts and our penal system.

LABOR LAW. By Sidney Fox. New York: Gould Publications, 1968. Pp. 124 $4.00. This book outlines labor law and its application to the union member. The author discusses such areas as NLRB conferences, elections, negotiations, mediation, arbitration, picketing, and union administration.

LAW IN A CHANGING AMERICA. Edited by Geoffrey C. Hazard, Jr. New Jersey: Prentice-Hall Inc., 1968. Pp. 207. $5.95. Fifteen noted contributors examine the principal areas of conflict between a rapidly modernizing America and the legal world. The subjects of the essays include the effect of social science on law and law making, the pros and cons of "specialization in the legal profession," and individual rights and social responsibilities.

THE MOONEY CASE. By Richard H. Frost. Stanford: Stanford University Press, 1968. Pp. 563. $12.50. The author delves into the intrigue of Tom Mooney's prosecution, uncovering new information on almost every aspect of the case. Mooney was convicted of murder for allegedly bombing a Preparedness Day Parade in San Francisco. The victim of inadequate legal safeguards and popular prejudices, this man became the symbol of the labor "threat." In addition to the legal intricacies, Frost analyzes the social and political intrigue which set the stage for the Sacco and Vanzetti trials.

THE NEW CONFESSION STANDARDS, "MIRANDA V. ARIZONA": A LEGAL PERSPECTIVE, A PRACTICAL PERSPECTIVE. By Nathan R. Sobel. New York: Gould Publications, 1966. Pp. 153. $6.50. In order to understand the significance of the Miranda case, Sobel first analyzes prior standards. He then explains the new standards under Miranda, pointing out what they are, upon what they are based, and the substantive and procedural problems in applying the standards.

ORGANIZED CRIME IN CHICAGO. By John Landesco. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1968. Pp. 293. $7.50. This book is the second edition of Landesco's contribution to the Illinois Crime Survey of 1929. The book is a historical look at organized terror, vice, "racketeering," and "gangsterism." Landesco suggests that the gangster, closely tied to his ethnic life and the political process, is a product of the social disorganization of urban life. This edition contains two new introductions as well as an appendix dealing with the juvenile delinquent and an appendix containing a summary and recommendations.

PRELUDES TO GIDEON: NOTES ON APPELLATE ADVOCACY, HABEAS CORPUS, AND CONSTITUTIONAL LITIGATION. By Daniel Meador. Charlottesville, Virginia: The Michie Co., 1967. Pp. 344. $7.50. Gideon v. Wainwright was the landmark decision which established the right to counsel in state criminal cases. The book unfolds the three years of litigation which culminated in the Supreme Court decision. Essentially it is a case study of appellate procedure, specifically in connection with the writ of habeas corpus. The author gives readers some "behind the scenes" insight into the Gideon case.

THE RIGHTS OF THE MENTALLY ILL. By Robert A. Farmer. New York: Arco Publishing Co., Inc. 1967. Pp. 140. $4.95. This exposition outlines the legal rights of the mentally ill. The pages are filled with numerous tables wherein the author compares each state's position on the various legal effects of mental incompetency. The topics discussed include statutory definitions, incompetency proceedings, commitment and their effect upon political, constitutional, and civil rights.

SENATOR ROBERT F. WAGNER AND THE RISE OF URBAN LIBERALISM. By J. Joseph Huthmacher. New York: Atheneum, 1968. Pp. 362. $10.00. The author has written the first serious and detailed biography of the political career of Senator Wagner, "The Legislative Pilot of the New Deal." The author traces the Senator's career from his early tutelage under Tammany Hall, through his conversion to the cause of writing effective social legislation, to his political battles with Republican Party leaders from Herbert Hoover to Robert A. Taft.