National Disability Rights Symposium Scheduled

by Professor Mary-Lynne Fisher
Loyola Law School will bring scholars and professionals from across the nation to present on the topic of disability discrimination. The event will take place on the Loyola campus in Los Angeles, California, on November 15-16, 1986.

The conference will be open to the public and will feature sessions on various aspects of disability law. Speakers will include professors, legal practitioners, and disability rights activists.

The keynote address will be delivered by Professor Mary-Lynne Fisher, a leading expert on disability law. Other featured speakers include Dr. John C. Costello, a legal scholar, and Dr. Mary-Lynne Fisher, a law professor.

In addition to the keynote address, there will be panel discussions, workshops, and networking opportunities for attendees. The conference is expected to attract a diverse audience, including lawyers, law students, disability rights advocates, and others interested in disability law.

Oldenburg-van Bruggen "Toppling Ladder" Installed

The long-awaited work of Claes Oldenburg, "Toppling Ladder With Spilling Paint," was officially dedicated at a reception on Friday, September 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. with both artists in attendance. The public opening was held on September 26.

The sculpture, which was donated by the Times Mirror Foundation, is the only public outdoor sculpture in the City of Los Angeles. It was installed east of downtown Los Angeles.

Oldenburg came to prominence in the early 1960s as a collaborator of pop culture. He is now considered by many critics to be one of the most influential contemporary sculptors in the world. His monumental clothepin in Philadelphia, baseball bat in Chicago, and toothpaste tube in Dusseldorf are among his many eye-catching projects.

A long-time friend and colleague of award-winning architect Frank O. Gehry, who designed Loyola Law School, Oldenburg likes collaborating with Gehry. In the September 1986 issue of Art Forum, written by Oldenburg's wife and collaborator, van Bruggen, she notes, "Toppling Ladder With Spilling Paint" celebrates Gehry's architectural practice of "disorganized order."

The sculpture is part of a growing collection of contemporary art coordinated by the Loyola Law School Art Committee. Comprised of faculty, students, alumni, and interested art aficionados, the committee has been responsible for several exhibitions and acquisitions of paintings by well-known Los Angeles artists.

"Toppling Ladder With Spilling Paint" can be seen during daylight hours throughout the year.

Annual Alumni Dinner Set For November 6

While working as a junior partner at Sane, Mandell & Davis, he returned to the school as an adjunct professor in 1982. He was in private practice from 1954 to 1960 when he came to Loyola as a full-time professor. He was Assistant Dean from 1961 to 1966, Associate Dean from 1966 to 1969, and served as Dean from 1969 to 1986.

The Class of 1936 will celebrate its 50th golden anniversary and each surviving member will be given a special handcrafted medallion. The year's Dinner Committee, in addition to Francis, includes: Roger Sullivan, '50, Bill Schneider, '49, Kevin Flanery, '89, Judi Biren Bloom, '75, Anne Vaughn, '42, and Mark Blackman, '43.

The Sheraton Grand Hotel will be the site for the annual alumni dinner, scheduled for Thursday, November 6, 1986, 6:30 p.m., according to Dinner Committee Chairman William Francis, '71. Emeritus Professor Lloyd Tevis, '50, will be the honoree and will receive the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award at the November 6 annual Alumni Dinner.

Loyola Tevis, '50, will receive the Alumni Association's Distinguished Service Award at the November 6 annual Alumni Dinner.

Tevis retired this summer after a 40-year association with Loyola Law School.

A Letter From The Dean

Dean Arthur N. Frakt

DON WILSON passed away last summer after a long illness. Over the last few months of his life, Don prepared himself and his colleagues with quiet courage, humanity and grace. He divided his prized antiques, books and other possessions among those whom he knew would cherish them and spent his last weeks in a hospital in the Finger Lakes Region of New York where he grew up, and always intended to return. I was particularly grateful that Don shared his collection of books and about the poet Robert Burns to my wife, Jama, who shared Don's Scottish heritage and enthusiasm. Don Wilson was nobody's Mr. Chips. He could be cantankerous and even intolerant, but he always upheld the best in all of us.

Because of the seriousness of Don's illness, we had not planned on his presence at Loyola this year. Fortunately, Jack Benson, one of our senior professors, has become significantly involved in the area of international trade, commerce and taxation in recent years, publishing and lecturing extensively — particularly in the rapidly emerging field of Pacific Basin Law. Jack's article on "Significant Developments in the United States Law Governing International Commercial Arbitration" recently appeared in the Connecticut Journal of International Law and he participated in a conference sponsored by Loyola law school in New Delhi in October of 1989.

Jack has some exciting plans to develop an editorial board for a journal that will focus on lawyers in those aspects of American law most critical to their ability to represent their clients in international trade matters. Over the next two years, Jack will undertake much of the challenge and Don Wilson had taught during his tenure at Loyola.

With the retirements of Bud Benson and Edith Friedler has been appointed Vice-Chairman of the Committee on Legal Aid and Pro Bono Services. Professor JOHN W. GIBSON will continue as Chair of the Committee. A faculty committee selected one of the students in the Loyola law school who seemed to stand out as a person with the best potential for success in that position. He was a visiting professor at Cleveland-Marshall where, as an undergraduate, he received his B.A. in psychology summa cum laude. He is as Associate Professor in labor and employment law.

Our second new teacher in BRYAN D. HULL, who joins us as a Visiting Associate Professor. Bryan is a 1982 graduate of the UCLA law school and was a panelist at the UCLA National Labor Relations Board symposium on 'The Fallacy of the Labor Law'. He joins us as Associate Professor in Labor and Employment Law.

Wilson Mourned By Campus Community

Professor CURT GARBESI visited the Max-Planck Institute for Human Rights in Heidelberg, Germany during the summer. While there, he presented a paper on the international protection of the right to asylum for the terminally ill.

Professor GIDEON KANNER has been appointed a Visiting Professor of the Committee on Condemnation Law of the American Bar Association for 1986-87, and to the American Bar Association Law School Section. Professor ALEXANDER C. SCHECHTER will deliver a paper at the University of the Pacific's Thirteenth Annual Conference on "The Constitution of the Federal Republic of Germany". Professor RICHARD FRANK is the new Associate Professor in International Trade, Commerce and Taxation.

Professor DON WILSON was a devoted member of the Loyola community and a leader among his peers. During his tenure at Loyola, he taught at Loyola this year. Unfortunately, Jack Benson and Edith Friedler have left us. John W. Gibson will continue as Chair of the Committee on Legal Aid and Pro Bono Services. Professor MARY-LYNNE FISHER is the new Dean of the School of Law.

Moodie Is New Campus Minister

It's a long way from the small town of Stew, Ohio near Akron to Loyola Law School in Los Angeles, but that's the route that Michael Moodie, S.J., the new Director of Campus Ministry took. Among the way were several other stops including Phoenix, Santa Barbara, San Jose, San Francisco, Spokane, and Rome — and a variety of assignments from high school counselor, canon lawyer, public relations director, teacher, to his current position.

Moodie became acquainted with the Jesuits when he attended Phoenix's Brophy High and he decided to enter the Jesuit novitiate in Santa Barbara after his graduation. After attending Loyola in Los Angeles, he received his B.A. from Gonzaga University in 1975 and prior to his ordination in 1979, was appointed a college counselor at Bellarmine High School in San Jose, and next served as interim academic vice principal at Bellarmine. He studied for his masters in divinity at the Marymount University, Merrifield, S.J., then President of Loyola-Marymount University, asking if he would consider coming to the Law School as Director of Public Relations and Adjunct professor specializing in canon law. He accepted, and among his other duties that year was editing the Loyola Lawyer. Then came what Moodie called his "transition year" where he returned to the Westchester campus to teach two graduate classes in the Master of Religious Education program in the fall, and acting as campus minister the second semester. When Edward Markey, S.J., the former Law School chaplain was made emeritus campus minister, it was a natural progression for Moodie to return to the Law School as full-time campus minister. This includes saying daily Mass in the Chapel of the Advocate at 12:10 p.m. Moodie is enthusiastic about his new appointment at the Law School.

"At Loyola's Westchester campus, the students involved in campus ministry are involved in projects, which I assisted them with," says Moodie. "My role at the Law School as Director of Campus Ministry is different. The students here find their time almost totally consumed with classes and studying and they are subjected to stress not usually found in undergraduate (Continued on page 9)

Professors Visit Nicaragua

Under the auspices of the Campus Ministry Office at Loyola Marymount University, Professors Robert Benson, Jennifer Friessen, Dan Stewart and Ken Vogel, as well as third year student Lisa Woodall, visited Nicaragua in June.

Considerable time was spent speaking with officials in the Justice, Foreign Affairs and Education Ministries, Anti-Sandanista Courts, legislature, prisons and pro- and anti-government human rights commissions.

The visitors also spoke with many other Nicaraguans including editors of both La Prensa, the now closed Sandanista newspaper and El Nuevo Diario, the non-government pro-revolution newspaper; leaders of opposition political parties, a high ranking member of COREP, Nicaragua's business persons association, and many other persons from (Continued on page 9)

Unique Tax Opportunity Before Reform Takes Effect

by Randy Siro
J.D., '78, M.S. Tax

Loyola Law School's Planned Giving Committee gives the school's alumni professional back-up on tax and estate planning aspects regarding proposed gifts by alumni and their clients. This article will discuss the unique opportunity that alumni have between now and the end of the year to finalize a planned gift.

1986 federal income tax rates max out at 39 percent. California can tax on as much as 11 percent more. A $1 deduction can thus save as much as $61 cents in taxes.

Next year, the top marginal income tax rate decreases to 28 percent (with a band of income taxed at 33 percent, and special blended rate rules for 1987 only). This means that gifts made in 1987 and later years will save the donor less taxes than those made in 1986 (assuming the donor has the same taxable income in the years being compared).

This alone should provide us with motivation to finalize gifts to Loyola Law School made by ourselves and by our clients prior to the end of 1986. In addition to this special motivation, existing opportunities for making non-cash gifts are still available.

Such opportunities include giving appreciated stock or real estate. In such event, the fair market value of the property can be deducted (subject to 30 percent of adjusted gross income limitations) and the donor can still avoid paying capital gains tax on the appreciation element. Further the donor will have gotten the asset out of his estate for federal estate tax purposes.

Other gifting patterns that The Committee will be pleased to discuss include: a) gifts of existing or new life insurance policies; b) gifts of a remainder interest in a residence; and c) charitable remainder trusts. Creative tax planning can turn charitable giving into a tax saving opportunity.

Because 1986 is the last high-rate year, it gives all of us who are interested in Loyola Law School's continued security and growth a sense of urgency about wrapping up our plans this year.

Questions regarding this article may be directed to Randy Siro, Committee Chairperson, at (213) 264-4081.

Cooney Receives Acting V.P. Appointment at LMU

Robert A. Cooney

The Rev. James N. Loughran, S.J., President of Loyola Marymount University, recently appointed Robert A. Cooney, the Assistant Dean for Business and Development at the Law School, as Acting Vice President for University Relations. Dean Arthur N. Frakt says Cooney will continue in his role as Law School Assistant Dean while serving as Acting Vice President while a national search is undertaken to permanently fill the LMU position. This should take approximately six months.

Alumni Involvement Plays Key Role
In Career Planning and Placement

by Carol Ross-Burnett
Director of Career Planning and Placement

A second year student listens attentively as a state court of appeals justice, who happens to be a Loyola Law School graduate, talks about her experiences on the bench and the stages which led her to it. The student's interest in the appellate process is piqued and she eventually winds up applying for and getting a position with a state court of appeals upon graduation.

A first year student takes scurrilous notes as a panel of five alumni from assorted areas of expertise discuss opportunities in private practice, government, business and legislative settings. Afterwards, the student talks to one of the panelists individually, obtains a business card and follows up with an appointment to further explore opportunities in one specific area.

There are just two examples of the result of alumni involvement with Career Planning and Placement Center activities. Each year, the Center—alone or in collaboration with the newly formed Law Student Alumni Association, make exclusive use of alumni as participants.

- Dr. Miyawaki, an LMU alumnus, is President and Chief Executive Officer of The Family Health, Inc., a medical center located in Honolulu. A long-time supporter of LAMU and founder of the school's Miyawaki Scholarship Fund, he received his medical degree from George Washington University.
BURNS SCHOLARS

"IN SEARCH OF EXCELLENCE"

Thanks to the continuing generosity of the Fritz B. Burns Foundation, a highly successful program called the Burns Scholars has been underway since 1983 at Loyola Law School.

Thelawschool, who have graduated are Deborah Snyder, '83 and Jack B. Hicks, '98, both now employed at O'Melveny & Myers. Pamela Louise Miller Andes, David Ward Isbell, John Savva are all current Burns Scholars.

In 1982, Dean Arthur N. Frakt and Law School representatives approached the Burns Foundation to ask if they would begin the Burns Scholars program with an endowment of $500,000. Frakt's idea was to pattern it after a similar scholarship called the Root-Tilden at the New York University School of Law.

"When the Root-Tilden Fellows program was established at NYU some years ago," says Frakt, "the school was a good one but not really considered to be on a par with many of the Ivy Leagues law schools. The programs I looked at were the very highest caliber of students. Now NYU is considered to be in the very best law schools in the country." The Burns Foundation, under William Hannan, LLM '85, immediately agreed and ranked number one in her class. For financial reasons, she was considering transferring when the scholarship was offered to her.

"Being a Burns Scholar meant I could stay at Loyola," says Snyder, who maintained her status as first in her class and remained on full tuition the rest of her law school career. "I made it possible for me to participate in extra-curricular activities which would not have been possible if I had to maintain a job while attending school," she says.

She was on the staff of The Loyola of Los Angeles Law Review her second year. Editor-in-Chief of the Review her third year, was a research assistant for Professor Dan Stewart after her first year, and after her second year clerked for O'Melveny & Myers. When she received her J.D. in 1986, Snyder was the winner of the William Tell Aggerle Award, the J. Rex Dobbins Honor Award, The American Society of Writers on Legal Subject&Awards, and a member of the St. Thomas More Law Honor Society. Snyder is now an associate at O'Melveny & Myers specializing in real estate law.

In 1984, Jack B. Hicks became the next Burns Scholar. He attended the University of Southern California on a Presidential Scholarship where he graduated in 1983 with his B.A. He entered Loyola Law School that fall and completed his first year with the highest class average which he maintained throughout law school. He was the Note and Comment Editor of The Loyola of Los Angeles Law Review, clerked for Professor John T. McDermott, a full-time student. He is currently clerking at the California Supreme Court.

"When the $500,000 was raised to date, " says Frakt; "the Burns Scholarship really tipped the scales for me." — John Savva.

gifted the first $100,000 with the challenge that funds raised by the Loyola Law School for the scholarship thereafter would be matched dollar for dollar by the Burns Foundation. The funds are designated for the very highest caliber of students. Now NYU is considered to be in the very best law schools in the country."

The law school.

At the end of her first year, she was given the West Publishing Company Award for the highest average in her first year class, and the American Jurisprudence Award in Torts and Civil Procedure. He also clerked for the law offices of Gary M. Gilkin in Beverly Hills during the summer of 1983.

Hicks graduated summa cum laude at the top of his class in June of this year, was a member of Phi Alpha Delta, the winner of the Williams Tell Aggerle Award, and a member of the St. Thomas More Law Honor Society. Vacantions in Europe at the time of this story, Hicks has been hired to work in the real estate section at O'Melveny & Myers. He is also a licensed California real estate agent.

Pamela Louise Miller Andes graduated magna cum laude from the University of Southern California in business administration in 1985 and became the first on-entry Burns Scholar. She had the highest combination of undergraduate achievement and Law School Admissions Test scores of any Loyola applicants that year.

"When I graduated from U.C.C., I offered me a full-time student. He is currently clerking at the California Supreme Court. Then in the court of Judge Malcolm Lucas. When he graduated this June, he will undoubtedly be at the top of his class."

In the fall of 1986, second year student John Savva was selected as a Burns Scholar. The school to road higher education has been awarded to John Savva. He was a deputy sheriff for Los Angeles County in 1979 when he decided to pursue his undergraduate degree. By day he attended Long Beach City College, later transferring to California State University Long Beach, and worked the graveyard shift to support himself and his family. Despite having to work full-time, he graduated with a degree in finance with honors from Long Beach in 1983.

David Ward Isbell compiled an astounding A+ average, which Dean Frakt says was "far and away the highest of the first year class, full of part-time."

Enrolling as an evening student at Loyola, he has an overall A+ average, which Dean Frakt says was "far and away the highest of the first year class, full or part-time." Frakt went on to say, "The Burns Scholarship has enabled Isbell to become a full-time student. He is currently clerking at the California Supreme Court in the court of Judge Malcolm Lucas. When he graduates this June, he will undoubtedly be at the top of his class."

In the fall of 1986, second year student John Savva was selected as a Burns Scholar. Savva received an early education in England and began medical school at the University of London. Then he decided to change his major to mathematics, transferring to the University of Manchester. He came to the United States in 1981 and continued studying mathematics at Pittsburgh College where he graduated with honors in 1984.

"I knew I wanted to go to law school," says Savva, "I wasn't sure where. I knew third year student Jim Doiran, and he spoke highly of Loyola so I decided to apply." He was accepted and after completing his first year, he was first in his class. For financial reasons, he was also considering transferring when the Burns Scholarship was offered to him.

As was the experience of some of the other Burns Scholars, being the recipient made a big difference in Savva's educational plans. "Being offered the Burns Scholarship really tipped the scales for me."

— John Savva.
FRITZ BURNS... THE MAN BEHIND THE FOUNDATION

In an archival photo from the 1950s, the late Fritz B. Burns (l) is shown with Rev. Charles Casassa, now the President of Loyola Marymount University.

As Co. He also contributed generously of his resources, not just his time.

Casassa goes on to describe Burns as a man who was "very modest, quiet with a nice sense of humor and a twinkle in his eye." Each year he would offer his lovely home in Hancock Park for the Law School’s alumni party.

Another Frank B. Seaver, a former Loyola Regent, donated $100,000 toward the establishment of a new science building at the Westchester campus. Burns matched the gift. It was suggested the building be named Seaver-Burns Hall, but Burns said jokingly that he didn’t believe in hyphenated names, and declined having anything named for him as long as he was alive.

But his generosity never stopped, even when he retired from the Board of Regents. His philanthropy also extended far into the community including the support of some two dozen churches of various denominations now located on sites developed by him and his associates. He claimed it was simply good business and good citizenship.

William H. Hannon, lU '37, Chairman of the Board of the Burns Foundation, is another man who remembers Burns well. He came to work for him the year he graduated from Loyola and "I've worked with him my whole life," he says.

Hannon admits Burns wasn’t just his employer but "my mentor and my friend." He also serves the admission of churches, he says, "It was Fritz’s practice to give churches and charitable institutions land when he was subdividing new communities. He would usually donate half and the recipient would then donate it to the university." Hannon remembers Burns saying, "I have never done anything for a church, but I’ve worked with them in my whole life."

The Rev. Charles Casassa, Chancellor Emeritus of Loyola Marymount University, is one man who remembers Burns well. Fritz was on our Board of Regents for many years and had a great fondness for the Law School because one of the members of his staff, Joe Rawlinson, attended the evening division and graduated from that school.

Casassa and Rawlinson, as you may know, are both Loyola alumni. Casassa was born in Minneapolis in 1899, Burns graduated from The Christian Brothers’ De La Salle High School and entered the University of Minnesota prior to World War I. He later attended the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania. He began his real estate development in the mid-West before moving to California. In addition to his building activities, Burns earned an early reputation as a philanthropist throughout Los Angeles.

Typical modest fashion, Burns immediately declined and the Cardinal then asked what Burns’s father name was. He replied it was Bernard and the Cardinal said, according to Hannon, "Well, then we’ll name it for your father." Since Bernard was also Burns’ middle name, the high school was indirectly named after him anyway, Hannon points out.

Burns was an officer in various charitable organizations in Los Angeles and held several offices, particularly one dedicated to his profession including President of the National Association of Home Builders, "Builder of the Year" in 1962 from the Los Angeles Building Contractors Association, and Los Angeles Chapters of Commerce Construction Industries Award as 1950’s "Man of Achievement."

In his role of community builder, he always conceptually devoted to develop well-rounded communities — i.e., homes in all price brackets, apartments of all sizes, shopping centers, parks, restaurants, hotels, schools and churches.

He was decorated Knight in the Order of Malta in 1961, received an honorary L.L.D. from Loyola Law School in 1963, and was the 1978 recipient of the Law School’s Distinguished Achievement Award along with Theodore A. von der Ahe, Jr.

Prior to his death, The Fritz B. Burns Foundation was established to continue the legacy of its founder.

The current Board of the Burns Foundation is comprised of several Loyola University donors. Richard Rawlinson, who is President and Hannon who is Chairman, Trustee Richard Dunn graduated from Loyola University in 1958, and Trustees J. Robert Vaughan, graduated from Loyola University in 1961 and Loyola Law School in 1969. Vaughan replaced the late E.F. Schnieders. Hannon says Vaughan was chosen because of his strong ties to Loyola’s Jesuit tradition of education. Kenneth Skinner and C.W. Getchell are the other two trustees.

In 1961 the Foundation established the new Burns Scholars program and so far five outstanding students have benefited from it.

Prior to his death, The Fritz B. Burns Foundation was established to continue the work of its founder.

This past year, the Foundation made additional grants to the general scholarship program at the Law School bringing their total scholarship endowment to more than $800,000, reports Dean Trask.

It is clear that though the man Fritz Bernard Burns is gone, his memory lives on through the Foundation's gifts, particularly at the Law School where his life and his works memorialize his extraordinary accomplishments.

New York University enabled that institution to attract outstanding students, the Burns Scholars program at Loyola Law School is also attracting top scholarly talent.

Thanks to our benefit, two honors students who have graduated, Snyder and Hicks, who have achieved the highest level of practice and he expects the same from every student who is selected for the program. "We are indeed fortunate to have the Burns Foundation take an interest in all aspects of our program here at Loyola. We are an excellent law school well on our way to becoming one of the best in the nation. I expect our Burns Scholars to ultimately spread the word across the community about the caliber of education they receive here," Pratt says.
Board Of Governors Elected

Brian T. Wardlaw, '89, has been elected President of the 1986-87 Board of Governors succeeding Guillermo Schnaider, '69.

Wardlaw's cabinet consists of Brian Brandmeyer, '88, Vice President, William Francis, '71, Treasurer, and Angela Hawkezie, '78, Secretary.

Members elected to the Board for two year terms in the recent election include: Judith J. Bloom, '78, Janet T. Davidson, '79, Richard Moden, '86, Joanne O'Donnell, '83, William Ryalaarsdam, '64, Guillermo Schnaider, '69, Roman Silberfeld, '74, Roger Sullivan, '82, Claire Van Dam, '73, and Anne Vaughan, '82.

Wardlaw appointed the following alumni to the Board for the 1986-87 year:
Mark Blackman, '85
Roxanne Christ, '85
Kevin Fiore, '87
William Holbrook, '84
Michael Lebovitz, '84

Ex-Officio members include Dean Arthur N. Frakt, Assistant Dean for Business and Development Robert A. Cooney, Director of Annual Giving and Development Anthony C. Means, and Day Student Bar Association President Skip Coomber, and Evening President James Thompson.

The Board of Governors meets at 6 p.m. on the third Wednesday of each month in the Dean's Conference Room at the Law School.

Alumni Activities Prove Popular — More To Come

If you are interested in having a good time, seeing old classmates and meeting new friends, you'll want to start attending the social functions sponsored by the Alumni Association. President Brian T. Wardlaw, following former President Bill Schnaider's lead, plans to offer even more activities this year under the auspices of the new Activities Committee.

During 1985-86, alumni participated in:
Sunday morning brunch at the Law School followed by a pleasant afternoon at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion for the Jeffrey Ballet. More than 90 alumni, family and friends enjoyed the day together.
A Saturday evening festival at the Hollywood Bowl Tchaikovsky Spectacular last month. Ninety tickets were sold and the event was even more enjoyable by a catered picnic under the stars before the concert began.

Name the People . . .

NAME THE PEOPLE IN THIS PHOTO FROM THE ST. THOMAS MORE BREAKFAST ON FEBRUARY 14, 1954 AND WIN DINNER FOR TWO AT THE EXQUISITE RAVEL RESTAURANT AT THE SHERATON GRANDE HOTEL.

Hint: The priest in the center front row is the late Rev. Joseph P. Donovan, the former rector of the Law School whose life will be celebrated next spring. The staff of The Lawyer has a hunch that at least one gentleman in this picture is currently on the Board of Governors. Call Fran Pullara, Director of Communications, (213) 736-1043 to give her your answers. Only alumni are eligible to win and the person correctly naming the most people in the photo will receive the dinner for two.

Donovan Memorial Celebration

The Rev. Joseph V. Donovan, S.J. Celebration has been scheduled for Friday, April 24, 1987. Fr. Donovan was rector of the Law School from 1927 to 1970 and 1987 will mark the tenth year since his death. Though specific plans for the day's event are still in the early stages, mark the date now on your calendars. It's time to start writing down or tape recording any colorful or poignant Fr. Donovan stories that you remember for inclusion in the Donovan memorial issue of The Loyola Lawyer that will come out in the spring.

Roger Sullivan, S.J., is currently working with school officials on the celebration and a committee is being formed. If you would like to volunteer to serve on the planning committee, or would like further information about the special issue of The Lawyer, call Fran Pullara at (213) 736-1000.

Saturday's sessions will begin with presentations on special education topics by Lois A. Weinberg, Ph.D., of Mental Health Advocacy Services, Inc., and James Comstock-Gallagahan, attorney with the Advocacy Center for the Disabled and Elderly in New Orleans. Weinberg will focus on eligibility of severely emotionally disturbed children for special education required by federal law and Comstock-Gallagahan will discuss the fairness and reliability of testing in diagnosing disability in school children.

Steven J. Schwartz, attorney with the Center for Public Representation in Northampton, Massachusetts, will discuss involuntary treatment of mentally ill outpatients. David Ferlager, a Philadelphia attorney, will present a paper he co-authored with Professor Douglas Biklen, Syracuse University School of Education, on the rights of severely handicapped persons to community-based treatment.

Caryl Andrea Oberman, attorney with the Developmental Disabilities Law Project in Philadelphia, will participate on the community-based treatment panel. New York Law School Professor Michael L. Perlin will discuss the use of state constitutions in disability rights advocacy.

The final speakers will be Loyola Law School Professors Jan C. Costello and James Preis, director of Mental Health Advocacy Services, Inc., who will address rights to services versus personal autonomy for chronically mentally ill persons. Professor Stanley E. Herr of University of Maryland School of Law will discuss ethical issues in representing mentally disabled adults.

The symposium is being organized by a committee of law school faculty, students and attorneys including Professors Costello and Tate, Professors Mary-Lynne Fisher and Vicki Michel, attorneys Marilyn Holle, Joseph Lawrence, and third year student Rosemary Jackovic, lead article editor of the Loyola of Los Angeles Law Review.

The Law School's facilities are accessible to persons with physical disabilities. Sign language interpreters will assist at all the presentations. Conference attendees will be able to meet and discuss areas of interest with the participants at informal receptions at the Law School on Friday and Saturday evenings and lunch on Saturday.

Visit West/Art & The Law Exhibit Through October 25

The Eleventh Annual ART AND THE LAW Exhibition will be on display at Loyola Law School, Los Angeles from September 12-October 25, 1986, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The public is invited to attend the free exhibition.

The Loyola Law School Art Program is dedicated to exploring and expanding relations between art and the law. This major exhibition of law related artwork is organized by West Publishing Company and seeks to focus attention on the law and its impact on society by encouraging artists to direct their creative talents to interpreting it.

The Eleventh Annual show includes fifty works by nationally known American artists. Among those represented are Andy Warhol, Judy Chicago, Edward Ruscha, Ed McGowin, Carmen Cicero, Claudia DelMonte, Michael Masur, Mauricio Lasansky, Jack Levine, Fritz Scholder, Jacob Landes, and John Wild.

The national exhibition tour previewed in New York at the American Bar Association in New York. After it leaves Loyola it will travel to the Blariden Memorial Art Museum, Fort Dodge, Iowa, the Sunris Museum, Charleston, West Virginia, and the Minnesota Museum of Art, St. Paul, Minnesota.

In addition to viewing ART AND THE LAW, guests attending the opening reception on September 12 had the opportunity to view local artists Kent Twitchell and Jim Morphesis' mural, "The Fall of Icarus". The mural occupies the atrium area of the school's Fritz B. Burns Building and can be viewed by the public when visiting the campus.

Well-known Los Angeles artists Jim Morphesis (l) and Kent Twitchell stand in front of their mural "The Fall of Icarus" which occupies one wall in the atrium area on the fourth floor of the Fritz B. Burns Academic Center. The mural was dedicated in September and can be seen during daylight hours at Loyola Law School.
